Description

The new rights and possibilities, made salient in the early part of the 19th Century, engender new philosophical problems which emerge in the latter part of the 19th Century. Thoreau contemplates non-cooperation, William James brings American 'Pragmatism' to bear on the Western philosophical tradition, and Nietzsche reflects upon the moral void created by the death of God.

Outline

Week One Introduction and Henry David Thoreau

Week Two William James

Week Three Friedrich Nietzsche and Conclusion

Suggested Reading

Apposite chapters from History of Western Philosophy by Bertrand Russell
